Bevan Briefings

Stay ahead of the curve with the latest essential information

Welcome to Bevan Briefings

This is a new service offered by the Bevan Foundation, which will provide your business or organisation with a unique insight into key policy areas from a social justice perspective. The Bevan Foundation is well-known for its high quality, independent research and analysis, which we now offer to subscribers.

An essential resource

The Briefings will be an essential resource for your organisation or business, offering:

✓ Unique insights into how inequalities and injustice affect your organisation or business

Find out how your activities are affected by socio-economic factors and by gender, age, disability, ethnicity and other protected characteristics<sup>1</sup>. Use this information to make sure you are being fair and equitable, supporting your customers and employees in increasingly difficult times and targeting your activities effectively.

✓ Robust information to promote you and your organisation

You'll have the key resources you need, whether it's to back a funding bid or to use in media statements and reports. All information is carefully referenced so that you can follow up specific issues in greater depth.

✓ Easy access to that elusive statistic

By bringing together information from a wide range of sources into a single place you'll save time on searching for hard-to-find information and never miss a key topic.

<sup>1</sup> Subject to the availability of statistics.

Based on sound evidence

THE BRIEFINGS WILL COVER THE FOLLOWING AREAS:

- |              |             |                     |
|--------------|-------------|---------------------|
| ✓ Health     | ✓ Education | ✓ Power and Justice |
| ✓ Employment | ✓ Housing   | ✓ Environment.      |

For 2015/16 there will be six bi-monthly briefings, beginning in May 2015.

Each briefing uses a set of key indicators for Wales, drawn from established and proven measures of equality and social justice including those developed by OECD, the Equality and Human Rights Commission and Oxfam.

Each indicator is then analysed, subject to the availability of statistics, by socio-economic group, and protected characteristic (gender, age, ethnicity, disability, religious belief and sexual orientation).

The findings are presented using a mix of text, tables and graphs. The sources of all data will be clearly provided should you wish to explore them further.

The briefings will be published in PDF format.

Copies will be emailed to all subscribers and will also be available to view or download in a password-protected area of our website.
